

What is Healthwatch Sunderland?

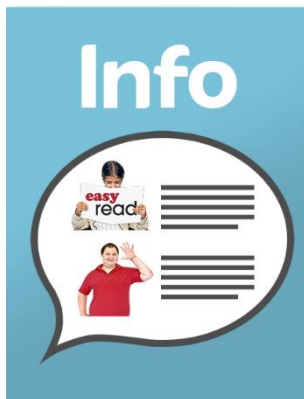

Healthwatch Sunderland is the new way for children, young people and adults to speak up about health and social care in Sunderland.

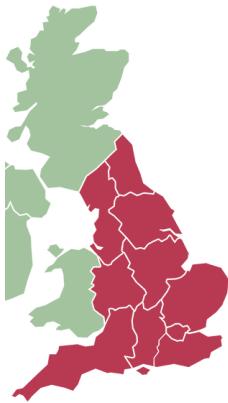

We will make sure that the people who plan, run and check services listen to what you think.

We will use the information people give us to make services better.

HEALTHWATCH HAS 2 PARTS

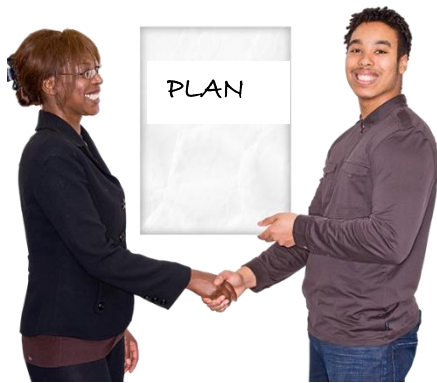

Healthwatch England is the National organisation

Local Healthwatch works in local communities

Sunderland

Healthwatch Sunderland is your local representative and helps people get good health and social care services in Sunderland.

Healthwatch England and Healthwatch Sunderland work together to make sure people who use services are listened to in their local areas, and by the government.

Healthwatch Sunderland gives everyone a chance to say what services they need now or in the future.

We give people information, advice and support about local health and social care services.

We find out what people think about services.

We go into services and check how good they are.

We let services know what support local people say they need and how they want to get this.

We are part of the Sunderland Health and Wellbeing Board which decides how services should be set up and run.

We share information and ideas about how to do things with other local Healthwatch groups, Healthwatch England and The Care Quality Commission.
