

Learn and Share Together (LAST)

Are you an NHS Trust or Private Provider that provides mental health, learning disability, autism or neuro services? Neuro services means support with how your brain works including brain injury or disease.

Do you have experience of using these services? Or have you supported someone to use these services?

We Welcome You to our Learn and Share Meeting on 30th September – 2 - 4pm

We will be using a programme called Zoom to connect and share. Find out how to use Zoom on your smart phone, laptop or computer by clicking on this link:

This meeting is about bringing every member of our community together to talk about how we listen to and respond to Feedback about using Health Trust services.

Listening – how we communicate, make information accessible and look at things that may make giving feedback easier or more difficult.

Learning - When people give their time to provide feedback - what happens next. This includes how people are involved in actions or changes that are needed.

Making Changes Happen Together – What Actions have been taken, where is the evidence and how have we shared this information?

What will happen in the meeting?

Working Together – Self-advocates will share their own thoughts and experiences about the Learn and Share Together meetings including personal stories and a video that we have made.

You Said We Did – We think it is important to share what has happened at the start of each meeting. We will share Actions and have time for people to ask questions.

Ryan Brown is the Patient and Carer Experience Officer from Tees, Esk and Wear Valley NHS Foundation Trust (TEWV) – Ryan will give an update of how TEWV Health Trust have responded to feedback given in our last meeting on 27th July.

Listening to You – Self advocates will lead an interactive question and answer session about giving feedback. This is all about listening to you and thinking about how everyone can give feedback in different ways.
